

PAYMENT OF TEACHERS

Checks to be Forwarded for October Salaries.

DISBURSING OFFICE READY

Rapid Work Necessary in Order to Complete Preliminaries.

REORGANIZATION OF SCHOOLS

Commission Considering Reduction in Buildings—Colored Citizens to Meet Superintendent.

The 1,700 public school teachers in the District can get their pay checks for the month of October tomorrow morning if they apply in person at the Franklin School building. A statement to this effect was made by Charles C. Rogers, the District disbursing officer, this morning.

The pay rolls of the public school system, which were late in being forwarded to the auditor of the District, have been completely audited and signed by Auditor Garrison, and the necessary signature of Disbursing Officer Rogers will have been placed on the checks by the time the District building closes this afternoon. The checks will be sent to the board of education, which will then forward them to the teachers, and the checks will then be ready for distribution. The work of completing the auditing and signing of this large pay roll at such an early date, in view of the delay, is looked upon as unusually rapid. However, to make it possible to pay the teachers tomorrow, the forces of the auditor and disbursing officers' offices were compelled to be reinforced and to work overtime.

Special Commission at Work.

The special commission, composed of Col. John Biddle, the Engineer Commissioner of the District; William E. Chancellor, superintendent of the public schools, and James K. Taylor, supervising architect of the United States treasury, which was created by the last Congress to form a plan of consolidation of the public schools and for the abandonment and sale of such school sites and buildings as they may deem necessary for the best good of the school service in the District, began active operations this morning.

The first step taken by this commission is that of making a thorough inspection of the various school buildings throughout the District and the sites upon which they are located, with a view of determining the advisability of changing the location of the schools, the question for them to decide being the greatest policy of making numerous four and eight-room school buildings and having them located so that no one of them will be far away from houses in any section of the district, or to establish large school buildings, and not build so many of them, but have them centrally located.

The placing of large school buildings at certain intervals is done, the Commissioners say, in New York and other large cities and are looked upon favorably. They do away with the little buildings scattered about the city, according to the Commissioners, and in doing so, it is believed, will be less expensive in many respects. The only difficulty which this commission expects in its work is, if it determines upon the large school buildings centrally located, such a plan might cause dissatisfaction among the citizens, whose children will have to go a greater distance to attend school, and may possibly have to ride on the cars if the distance between their home and the school is too great.

Inspection Begun.

For several weeks this special commission has been preparing a plan of action to follow, preparatory to beginning its active work, and this being finished, it decided it would begin inspecting the school buildings. To do this it will necessitate the traversing of the entire District, as the present school buildings are located in every section of the city and county. Commissioner Biddle said this morning, before starting on this tour of inspection, that owing to the number of schools and the vast amount of territory to be covered, the work will take several weeks.

The provisions of the act of Congress creating this special committee require the latter, after reviewing the school question, to submit a general plan of character, size and location of the school buildings, in accordance with the local educational and business interests. In other words, it is required, under the act, that the four and eight room school buildings should be distributed around, or whether these buildings should be abandoned. It is also to be based upon the type of school buildings and the general architecture.

When speaking of this proposed consolidation of the public school system an official in the engineer department said yesterday that according to the present system the school buildings are so numerous and situated in such manner that few school children have to go more than six or seven blocks from their homes to attend, except in the remote suburbs, and even then, he says, the distances are much shorter than would be supposed. However he is of the opinion that if the present system is changed and the numerous little schools are abandoned, much protest will be forthcoming from the parents of school children.

"I know one man," this official stated, "who has said if the school system is changed so that his children have to walk ten or fifteen blocks or ride to and from school he would rather not send them to school, and this is likely to be the sentiment of many others."

Arranging for Interview.

Rev. Dr. S. L. Corrothers, president of the colored citizens' committee on public school affairs, has called a special meeting of the executive committee of the organization to take under consideration steps to arrange for an interview with Supt. Chancellor of the public schools. This move was made by Dr. Corrothers after he had read the invitation extended to the committee by the superintendent, published in The Star yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that Dr. Corrothers will select the committee which will confer with Dr. Chancellor, acting, of course, on the advice of the executive body of the citizens' organization.

The superintendent of schools has been taken at his word, and the colored people await the outcome with the greatest interest.

RELEASED ON BAIL.

Alphonso M. Newell Appears in Police Court.

Alphonso M. Newell was taken to the Police Court today from the sixth precinct station, and a charge of committing assault with a dangerous weapon on Victor E. Adler, 1205 10th street, was entered against him. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph Given stated that Mr. Adler has not recovered sufficiently to appear in court, and asked for a continuance until next Monday.

At the request of Prosecuting Attorney Given, Judge Mulwiny fixed bond at $2,000, which was furnished, Attorney Julius L. Taylor appearing for Newell.

When asked regarding the report that Mr. Adler would not prosecute Newell, Prosecuting Attorney Given stated that he had not been informed directly of such an intent on Mr. Adler's part.

If he won't prosecute him, I will," Mr. Given stated, "I do not think that it is a case that ought to be dropped in this court."

Charlie Kincaid Dead.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, November 2.—Charles Kincaid, former United States consular agent at Lancaster, England, and for a long time special correspondent at Washington for New York and San Francisco papers, died today in the City Hospital aged fifty-one years. He had been with the Enquirer for the last eleven years.

COURT TAKES A HAND

TROUBLES IN SHILOH CHURCH AMICABLY ADJUSTED.

Temporary cessation of hostilities between the warring factions of Shiloh Baptist Church, colored, 16th and L streets northwest, was arranged after a detailed exposition of both sides of the case in Equity Court No. 1 today, before Chief Justice Clabaugh. The arrangement effected was at the suggestion of Justice Clabaugh, and the result will be that the new board of trustees, elected by one faction Friday last, will remain in power, while the other side will have the privilege of naming other preachers who shall fill the pulpit pending another election, provided the former pastor, Rev. J. Anderson Taylor, shall not officiate.

A formal order to this effect was drawn by Attorneys Ralston & Siddons and Archer & Smith, representing the two sides, and was signed by Justice Clabaugh. Practically the end accomplished by this compromise is that, an entire new election, both for a pastor of the church and for the board of deacons and trustees, will be held upon a date to be mutually agreed. When the case was reached on the motion list in Equity Court No. 1, this morning, the court room was crowded with those interested in Shiloh Church, both sides being represented. The action, as outlined in his explanation of the complainant's side of the case by Attorney Ralston, which was brought to the old board of trustees of the church to relinquish possession of the church property and permit meetings to be held under direction of the pastor, Rev. Taylor, who, it was claimed, had been duly re-elected to fill the pulpit at a business meeting of the congregation last Friday.

Outline of Grievances.

It was explained that the deacons and trustees composing the old board had changed the locks in the church doors, and barred the windows so that the meetings for worship on last Sunday and again for prayer meeting on Wednesday could not be held in the church, the Sunday service being held, by permission of the police authorities, in the street.

Attorneys Archer and Smith, for the defendants, made the claim that the rules of the Baptist church make the first Friday night before the first Sunday in each month the proper and legal time for the transaction of the business of the church, and that the election of a new board of trustees and deacons last Friday, and the re-election of Rev. Taylor, or the acceptance of the withdrawal of his resignation, which was to take effect November 1, was in the nature of a snap judgment in which a minority only of the congregation had voice. Reading his answer to the original bill, Attorney Archer brought out the fact that the trouble in Shiloh Church started in August last, when charges of immorality were brought against Rev. Taylor.

It seems that the side opposed to Taylor mustered some 328 signatures, and this, it was claimed, was a majority, while the friends of Taylor, who has been pastor of Shiloh Church for sixteen years, claim that the total of membership is between 900 and 1,300. Attorney Ralston presented a letter in which the accusation against the preacher was retracted.

Justice Clabaugh's Suggestion.

Without permitting the argument to drag to great length, Chief Justice Clabaugh said: "This is a matter which should not be in court at all. Why cannot the whole thing be settled? It is a lamentable thing to see people who call themselves Christians coming into the public courts with a controversy of this kind."

The justice then made a suggestion that the old board of trustees be temporarily left in power, on one side, and the preacher, Taylor, remain in the pulpit until a new election, in which all qualified members can participate, may be held. This he said would be in the nature of mutual compromise, and would give opportunity for the settling of all questions by majority rule without further appeal to the court. On the same line the judge suggested that the withdrawal of Taylor, who were chosen at the factional meeting on Friday last should be left in power pending a new election, and Rev. Taylor desisted, also temporarily, until the will of the majority can be determined, while the pulpit is filled by the faction opposed to Taylor. This latter proposition was accepted by both sides.

Negro Turns White.

A coal-black negro in Middlecott, England, is said in an hour to have turned white. The change, remarkable as it is, is less extraordinary than the circumstances accompanying it. Read about them in "Daniel Sweetland," Eden Philpott's masterpiece, which will begin serial publication in this paper Saturday, November 3, before appearing in book form. It is seventh of the famous $150,000 series of novels.

It matters little what it is that you want—whether a situation or a servant—"want" ad. In The Star will reach the person who can fill your need.
